10 Ways to Earn Additional Income

Have a garage sale. This is an excellent way to earn additional income while also providing a great discount to your community.

Sell on eBay. We cannot stress this option enough. If you have anything in your home that you no longer use, try to sell it on eBay! Millions of people go to eBay's website everyday looking to purchase all types of products: new, used, half empty, etc.

Try freelancing. There are several websites that provide freelance services. One of our favorites is www.ifreelance.com. After you sign up, you can search thousands of projects that companies want help with. Sometimes, you do not even have to physically go to the location. A lot of jobs are online and can be worked on in your spare time. For example, we recently found a job in the "Administration/Clerical" section that needed someone to simply go to a list of websites and type the name, address, and phone number located within the Contact Us tab into an Excel worksheet. The end bid for this project was around $500.00 for roughly 450 websites. The best part is that when you sign up to bid on a particular project, you can decide the payment terms. That means you can state something like "I will submit final copy once cleared payment has been received." Then you may not have to worry about doing work without getting paid for it. iFreelance.com offers categories of services that include writing, design, programming, photography, audio recordings and much more. Calling all pet lovers. Provide dog walking or pet sitting services. According to Packaged Facts, a consumer research company, Americans spend roughly $41 billion on their pets each year. If you are good with animals, think about posting an ad in your local newspaper. In this economy many families are working two or even three jobs and don't have time to walk their pets. You might be just the one they need to help out with a few of their extra tasks.

Babysit. Contrary to what one might believe, babysitting is not only a job for sixteen year old girls. Anyone, no matter how old they are or their sex, can babysit. As mentioned above, people are now working several jobs to bring in extra money. Families need childcare. Why not post an ad to babysit? You can make a great side income by watching after someone's children.

Take photographs. No matter what your skill level, sites like www.shutterstock.com or www.istockphoto.com allow anyone to submit photos online. If your photo(s) are approved, you will earn money every time one of your photographs is downloaded. The more you submit, the higher your chances of getting one published will be.

Join a focus group. Go to www.findfocusgroups.com. This site provides a directory of products and services that organizations need evaluated by the public. This is an excellent way to earn additional income. Check it out to see if this is something that you would be interested in.

Get paid for taking surveys. Opinion Outpost is a research company that helps businesses gain further insight into their products. For every survey you complete, Opinion Outpost will give you opinion points. For example, for every 50 opinion points you receive, you can cash them in for a $5.00 check. Check out the FAQ page at www.opinionoutpost.com for more information.

Sell products. Are you good at sales? Why not sell Avon products? According to Avon.com, they are the leader in anti-aging skin care, cosmetics and fragrances. Their annual sales are at 8 billion dollars. Now you can sell online or in person. Find out more at www.avon.com.

Become a tutor. At www.tutor.com you can apply to become a tutor in a subject you are an expert in. Their services are offered 24/7 which allows you to choose your own schedule.
